and told me to phone the police. He said: "I have just shot my wife."
Police arrived to find Woolridge sitting in the kitchen.
"He said something about being jealous," said Const. A. MacDonald. Friends of Mrs. Woolridge said she left the wedding party at 11:30 Friday night, but she did not return to her home until after 4:00 a.m. Saturday.

News that their son, Malcolm, one of twin boys, was charged with murder and their daughter-in-law, Viola, dead, was broken to Mr. and Mrs. Henry Woolridge, 9743 93 st., by a letter telegram from a relative in Vancouver Saturday evening.
Their eldest son, Henry, began immediately making arrangements to send the elderly couple to Vancouver to be near young Malcolm. Mr. and Mrs. Woolridge left Edmonton Sunday for the coast. They will probably arrive in Vancouver, B.C., but the son Henry did not know the address or initials of the aunt who advised the Woolridges by telegram that Malcolm was being held for the murder of his wife.

Henry Woolridge, Jr., said Monday Malcolm was aged 20, and had a twin brother, Eric, a railway clerk here.

President-elect Tomas Barreto, right, of Uruguay, who is shown being greeted by Juan Carlos Blanes, Uruguayan ambassador to the U.S., at his arrival in Miami, Florida. During his 15-day visit to the U.S., President Barreto was scheduled to call on President Truman at the White House.

married was older than he was. He was married pretty young, just 17, you know. And he went into the navy too young. He got in before he was the proper age. He took his discharge out at the coast, and I never saw anything more of him and Viola.

The young Edmonton man being held at the coast on a charge of murdering his wife was described by a former employer here and other Edmonton friends as "a nice young fellow, who was maybe a bit impulsive, but not the type you would think capable of anything like this."

He joined the navy as a steward in April 1944, and most of his service was at the west coast. He left the employ of the Prince Rupert Fish Market, where he was a delivery boy and trucker, to join the service.

He attended Bennett public school and Strathcona high school, and at both schools was regarded as an average student.

He married Viola Gaudry just prior to joining the navy.

Seeks Aid Son
The Woolridge house in Gallagher fish, across the road from the Bennett school, was locked and quiet Monday. On the porch, in storage, was the twin baby carriage in which Mrs. Woolridge had first wheeled the twins, Malcolm and Eric. Quite ill for some time past, Mrs. Woolridge received the shocking news with surprising calm, and began planning ways of giving her son every possible assistance.

Mrs. Lily Gaudry, PO 15, Edmonton, mother of the dead woman, did not know of the murder until Saturday night when she heard a report over a city radio station. "I couldn't believe it," she said Monday. "I telephoned for more information immediately and then I learned the truth. I still can hardly believe it."

Mrs. Gaudry said the couple had been married for about four years. She said the pair had known each other for many years, having played together as children.

Was in R.C.A.F.
Viola Gaudry Woolridge was 22. She was in the R.C.A.F. at Rockcliffe, Ont., when she was married. She is survived by her parents and two sisters. The eldest sister lives in Toronto and is expected to accompany Mrs. Gaudry to Vancouver on Thursday to make funeral plans. The youngest sister lives at home. The Gaudry family has lived in Edmonton for about 40 years.

Mrs. Gaudry on Monday also stated that she knew Malcolm Woolridge only as "a grand boy." Both families have been friendly for many years, she added.

He was in Edmonton with his grandparents until November last year.

Sifting Evidence In Albania Case

LAKE SUCCESS, (AP)—A three-man sub-committee of the United Nations security council began sifting evidence behind closed doors Monday on Britain's charges that Albania committed "a crime against humanity" by sowing mines in Corfu channel.

British sources said Sir Alexander Cudogian, British delegate to the council, would attempt to block any move to detain the case to the international court of justice without prior council finding against the Tirana government.

Some delegates said they expected a controversy over whether the sub-committee should make specific recommendations to the council in its report, due March 10.

Britain does not oppose eventual reference of the case to the court for a legal opinion, but demands that the council take some action on this specific complaint. She seeks an apology and compensation from Albania for damages to two destroyers and the deaths of 44 seamen in Corfu channel last Oct. 22 when the British vessel struck mines.

HAMBURG, Germany, (AP)—The British military government Monday announced virtual cessation of public utilities in Hamburg as a result of the fuel shortage.

Find Secret Oasis In Antarctic Area

ABOARD MOUNT OLYMPUS (AP)—The Western Task Group Sunday reported discovering "another oasis" in the Antarctic.

Capt. Robert S. Quackenbush, Jr., chief of staff of the United States navy's homeward bound Antarctic expedition, said the oasis was reported found near the Vestfold mountains about 500 miles west of the ice-free region of the multi-colored lakes and bays earth discovered Feb. 11. He said the report, received by radio message, gave no details.

Alone During Fire, Three Children Flee

side her home. "I screamed to my husband and the Robinsons then ran across," she said. "I soon saw that all the children were out. I ran to telephone the department while my husband tried to get into the house and save our money."

Mr. Matras first tried to enter the house through a door but by that time it was too hot to touch. He was cut off by flames. He then smashed a window and attempted to crawl through but was forced back by smoke.

Couldn't Save Home

When firemen arrived, flames had gained such a start they could do little but control the blaze. The fire had already eaten through the roof of the six-room frame structure and there was no chance of saving it. The nearest fire hydrant was about a quarter of a mile away and firemen strung out 1 1/2 loads of hose.

The distance was so great that water from the hydrant had to be run through the pressure pumps of a fire truck parked at the hydrant. Firemen poured water on the flames for almost two hours before the "all out" signal came. District Chief Thomas Harvey was in charge.

The house was owned by Mrs. Nick Lorenz, a sister of Mrs. Matras, and was recently sold. The family moved into it last September. Mrs. Matras said she believed insurance was carried on the house. The furniture, belonging to Mr. and Mrs. Matras, was insured.

Authorities have not definitely decided what caused the fire but believe it may have been an overheated chimney. When Mr. Matras arrived the flames seemed to be concentrated in a wall separating the kitchen and living room.

"An Awful Loss"

"It's an awful loss," Mrs. Matras said, "we haven't a thing left, not even shoes for the children, but we have a lot to thank God for. At least our children are safe. The youngest of the family, four-month-old Thomas, was with his parents at the Robinson home."

Mrs. Matras has no idea what could have caused the fire. She visited the house only 15 minutes before the fire started, to see that the children were alright and everything appeared in order then.

After receiving treatment for his cuts at the Royal Alexandra hospital where he was taken by Const. E. Wheatfield, Mr. Matras returned to watch firemen douse the last ember. He said he didn't know just what he would do. The family stayed Sunday night with the Robinsons.

Red Cross representatives were out to see what could be done to assist the Matras family early Monday. Clothing and other essentials were taken to the family and Robert Muir, secretary-manager of the Red Cross here, said more assistance would be given as soon as the family's detailed needs could be listed.

Rail Rate Spread Reduced Since '15

OTTAWA, (CP)—Differences in freight rates between British Columbia and the east have been cut down since 1915. C. E. Jefferson, freight traffic manager of the C.P.R., declared Monday at the board of transport commissioners inquiry into the application of Canadian railway rates for general 80-percent increases in freight rates.

The Pacific rates generally in the standard mileage class were still higher, but the disparity had been reduced to a "more marked" degree. In this period, then had the difference between the prairies and the east been reduced.

In distributing mileage class rates—for traffic moving from distributing centres to smaller communities—the same situation existed as regards reductions, Mr. Jefferson said.

In this classification, Mr. Jefferson declared, narrowing of the gap had been greater on the Pacific coast than on the prairies.

Some Higher in East

Comparing commodity mileage rates between Ontario-Quebec and the prairies, Mr. Jefferson presented a table on existing rates showing some were higher in the west and some in the east.

Dealing with building materials specifically, he said in "almost every instance" the rates were lower on the prairies than in the central provinces.

He said rates on coal shipments originating in Saskatchewan were lower than those in Ontario-Quebec. The Alberta-B.C. rates were, with few exceptions, lower than the charges for anthracite in Ontario-Quebec.

However, they were higher than the bituminous rates of the central provinces, though lower by more than 30 cents a ton.

Grain Rates Higher

Prairie-east rates on fertilizer, Mr. Jefferson said, were identical on commodity mileage scales.

On grain, grain products and flaxseed, the rates in the prairie provinces were generally higher than in Quebec-Ontario on commodity mileage rates.

However, the amount of traffic moving at these rates on the prairies was comparatively small in relation to the total, since the bulk of the volume was carried at lower export rates.

Poles Ask Change In Farm Contracts

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Nearly 100 Polish war veterans at a meeting here Sunday asked for a new contract, replacing the one under which they came to Canada to work on farms, and declared they are discontented with poor pay, long hours, harsh treatment, and failure of farmers to treat them on a par with Canadians.

In the meeting, they met with district farmers and agricultural officials and suggested a new agreement with a schedule of working hours, including time off, and new rates of pay.

Toni Schakowsky, leader of the Polish group, said not one man had been allowed a Sunday off since arrival several months ago. Many Poles, he said, found their place satisfactory, but others found their treatment the same as that accorded German prisoners.

In reply, W. Davidson, agricultural adviser, Dominion and provincial farm labor committee, said it would be impossible to set a minimum working time as farmers must be prepared to work overtime to bring in crops. At other times, he said, working hours might be shorter than in the proposed new agreement.

"You will remember that the terms upon which you were selected in Italy and accepted for entry into Canada, were that you would work on farms for a period of two years," Mr. Davidson told the veterans.

"Had it not been for the willingness of farmers to make this contract, you would not have been accepted into Canada."

Poles working in Alberta under the scheme were said by O. S. Longman, deputy minister of agriculture, to be "quite satisfied and content." He declared there had been no major complaints by any of them and the farmers for whom they worked were satisfied.

British M.P.'s Bitter at Way Nationalization Bills 'Rushed'

By Basil Dean
LONDON.—Angry Conservative M.P.'s crowded into the commons Monday afternoon determined to fight a grim battle over the government's decision to limit committee discussion of two major bills, measures to nationalize transport and to "wage" all Britain for town-planning purposes.

This decision is regarded by many members as a final insult to a house which, for 18 months, has been forced to rush important legislation through with what they regard as grossly inadequate debating time.

The "guillotine" measure by which time spent by the standing committee in the clause by clause discussion of these two complex bills is to be arbitrarily restricted, is designed to ensure that both of them are referred back to the whole house for third reading by Easter—only a month off.

It comes as the culmination of a series of steps taken by the government to get the main framework of its nationalization policy established in the shortest possible time. The Conservatives have already fought bitter but unsuccessful rearguard actions to prevent such vital measures from being referred to a 30-man standing committee instead of to the committee of the whole house, as traditional British parliamentary practice demands for all bills constituting major changes in national policy.

The government's reason for applying the time restriction is that the time must be given for final discussion by the whole house and for subsequent consideration by the lords before the present session ends in the fall.

Given Little Time

However, for bills of such first class importance, the total time allotted has been extraordinarily short. The transport bill was given three days for debate on second reading; the town-planning bill got only two. Each bill will be allotted a further four days for final stages in the house. Thus, in 13 days, the commons has been required to discuss and approve measures which will place every transport concern in Britain under state ownership and every square foot of land under strict government control.

The real reason for cutting into debating time in this drastic way seems to be that the government has taken on too much major legislation this session. World Food Stock Slightly Improved

By Peter Inglis

WASHINGTON.—In spite of increases in production, the world food situation is "only slightly better" than a year ago.

The U.S. agriculture department's office of foreign agricultural relations says in a report released Monday that "although the number of countries in acute need of food is smaller than a year earlier, there are still several countries where the present low level of food rations will have to be sharply reduced unless large imports are received before the next harvest."

Worst conditions, it says, are in Germany, Austria, Rumania, the Soviet Union and the "deficit producing countries" of the Far East. However the report forecasts considerably larger food exports to hungry areas in the first half of 1947 than in the last half of 1946, and possibly even in the first half of 1946.

It says United States shipments of grain rose to 1,300,000 tons a month during December and January and should remain high through March. Increased Caribbean production will also make for larger sugar exports—although still nowhere near normal.

Collier Reported Broken in Two

BOSTON, (AP).—The collier Oakley L. Alexander sent an S.O.S. reporting she had broken in two early Monday in one of the wildest coastal storms in years and followed it with a message saying she had gone aground at rocky Cape Elizabeth. There was no word of her crew, normally 35 to 40 men.

The United States coast guard tug Cowslip was half an hour from the collier when her S.O.S. cut through the storm and coast guard officials believed both she and the tug Arundel from South Portland were near the Alexander at day-break.

Robot Rocket Plane To Try 800 M.P.H.

LONDON, (Reuters).—British aviation experts will try to burst through the barrier of the speed of sound next month, launching a pilotless rocket plane which is hoped to reach speeds of 800 to 900 miles an hour, the Sunday Times said.

The experiments will be conducted off the coast of Cornwall with a Vickers rocket plane, launched 30,000 feet up from a Mosquito plane, the paper said.

Find Frozen Body Of Missing Girl

WINKLER, Man., (CP).—A seven-day search of a 50-mile area around Winkler, Man., came to an end Saturday when searchers found the frozen body of 22-year-old Elizabeth Peters in a windwept field two miles east of here.

She disappeared Feb. 22 after alighting from a bus which brought her from Carman, Man. It is believed she started to walk the three miles to her farm home and became lost in the blizzard.

A group of 170 men searched the open prairie and 15-foot drifts without success until Thursday when footprints of a woman were found in a field five-miles southwest of Winkler.

Attlee Finds U.N. Is 'Disappointing'

LONDON, (AP).—Prime Minister Attlee said Saturday night he was somewhat "disappointed" in the United Nations' first year.

He spoke at a rally of the United Nations' association along with Jan Masaryk, Czechoslovakian foreign minister, and Anthony Eden, one-time British foreign secretary and now deputy leader of the Conservative party.

"During this past year," Attlee declared, "we have all experienced some degree of disappointment with the U.N. We had hoped for greater progress and greater unity in its assembly and the security council."

He listed these activities as the economic and social council, educational, scientific and cultural organization, food and agricultural organization and commissions dealing with employment, transport, human rights and other subjects.

OTTAWA, (CP).—Calgary airport, along with the airfields at Edmonton and Lethbridge, has been named as a customs airport and legal port of entry in Alberta via the air route, a dominion customs branch official said.

VANCOUVER, (CP).—Marvin Lester Mack, 25, sailor in the United States navy from Bremerton, Wash., Saturday was sentenced to life imprisonment following his conviction of attempted murder of Olive Negrich on a Vancouver street last Aug. 24.

Miss Negrich, 24, of Gilbert Plains, Man., was shot three times, one bullet entering the spine and paralyzing her.

Reiterates Demand For Part in Peace

SHERRBOOKE, Que., (CP).—Health Minister Martin said Saturday night that Canada would stand by its request that the council of foreign ministers find some formula to permit her taking "a helpful and constructive" part in the German peace settlement.

Addressing the annual eastern study conference of the Canadian Institute of International Affairs, the former delegate to the United Nations assembly reiterated this country's view that the procedure adopted by the foreign ministers was "inadequate."

Canada would not support the inclusion of Germans in large numbers in areas outside the German state, but would prefer to see the new frontiers drawn on an ethnic basis, Mr. Martin said.

Canada also supported continuance of a democratic system in Austria. Because it had not been given full information on the deputies deliberations over Austria, the Canadian government had confined itself to "very general views."

Make it a Full Week

The Glenora Ice Show which wound up Saturday night was by general consent the most spectacular event of the kind ever staged in western Canada. Professionals and amateurs vied in putting on a program which drew enthusiastic applause from the crowds which filled the arena at each performance.

A regrettable feature was that the arena could only be secured for three evenings, with a fourth evening for a dress rehearsal. As a consequence the admission fee had to be set high. The professional performers were brought here at very heavy expense, and to finance the whole undertaking meant that each evening's revenue had to be as large as could possibly be secured. Fortunately, the financial outcome was satisfactory, despite this handicap.

It is to be hoped that arrangements can be made which will permit the holding of next winter's Show for a full week. The additional expense would be relatively small, and if performances are put on five nights it will be possible to make seats available at prices within reach of many who did not feel able to attend this year.

Even more important, a week's show would enable a far larger number of people to witness the performances without uncomfortably crowding the seating capacity of the arena.

To make this arrangement will involve adjusting hockey schedules so as to leave the auditorium free for a week in the latter part of February—which is the time preferred because of the need to give amateurs a fair opportunity to thoroughly train in advance. It should not be impossible to make this adjustment, and in view of the high mark established by the Ice Show of last week, this would be very much to the good.

What a Shame

The whole world is writhing under the torment of an unusually severe winter.

Great Britain is fighting for her economic existence under circumstances that are taxing the endurance of her people to the limit. Her entire future as a great power is at stake in a manner that could affect the whole structure of the British Commonwealth of Nations.

Canada is waging a desperate battle to attain a level of production that will enable her to achieve economic recovery after the imbalance of the war period. For production, which is the only source of wealth and prosperity, is being attacked by many factors. And until Canada does reach a satisfactory level of production, her condition will continue to be critical.

All humanity is beset with grave problems. There are crises on every hand.

But the matter which agitates L.D. Ward, M.L.A., most seriously is the fact, the dreadful fact, that a man can't take his wife into a beer parlor!

The British are freezing and going hungry. In all parts of the world there is distress and suffering.

But Alberta's hardship rises in poignancy above all others.

A man in this backward province, can't drink beer with his wife in a beer parlor. What a shame!

Who Is to Pay?

The federal Air Transport Board has approved application for three commercial air service licenses in Alberta, and the same number in British Columbia. Already there are dozens of such services in operation in Canada and the number is growing steadily. It will probably grow more rapidly in future. Overhead transport and travel is not a temporary fad. It has come to stay, and to expand.

That brings up the question of where the responsibility is to rest if a plane somewhere crashes on the roof of a house or in a public street, killing people or destroying property or both. There is no use blinking this question. It is just bound to happen some time as surely as railway wrecks do happen despite the best intentions and the most skillful handling of trains and schedules.

This danger is not visionary. It exists. Edmonton is a place where it exists and has existed more really perhaps than in any other centre in Canada. For the last seven years, every day and many times a day Edmonton homes have been and are placed under a risk which necessarily arises when planes fly over them at relatively low levels.

By good fortune which can only be rated as singular, no home in this city has been destroyed in a crash. That is highly creditable alike to the pilots, to the quality of their machines, and to the ground crews who look after the conditioning of these. But this good fortune does not affect the fact that the danger has existed, and does exist here and wherever else planes fly at low altitude over densely populated areas.

In wartime persons and property on the ground in Canada were protected by blanket insurance against injury caused by a plane engaged in war service. Does this blanket insurance still hold, and does it apply to planes engaged in the purely civilian service of carrying passengers and freight?

This is a matter which parliament should look into, and make whatever safeguarding provisions are necessary. Since the national authority licenses commercial flying and directly controls military flying, there should be no doubt or misunderstanding that it is also responsible if a plane of either kind crashes on a house or in a street, causing death or property damage.

Delayed Penalties

One John Boyko has been convicted of murder in Montreal and sentenced to be hanged. The date of the execution has been fixed for June 6th.

Without raising the question of whether capital punishment is essential, humanity argues that if a man is going to be hanged, he should be hanged as quickly as the processes of justice permit.

Time was in Canada when long delays in carrying out the sentence did not occur, when the English legal term of "three clear Sundays" between conviction and execution was adhered to pretty closely. Indeed, few executions, in those days, were delayed beyond a maximum of six weeks after sentence was passed upon a murderer.

There are certain formalities to be undergone, of course, before the death penalty can be carried out. It is right and proper that the process should be given every opportunity for appeal. It is right and proper that the evidence which led to his conviction should be reviewed with conscientious thoroughness by the department of justice.

But surely all this can be done in a month, at most. If it is not being done in this space of time, some function of the machinery of justice must be interfered with by an unnecessary bottleneck.

To keep a man under sentence of death, as in Boyko's case, prolonging his anguish of fear for 13 or 14 weeks, almost falls under the head of cruel and unusual punishment. There can be no justification for such long and painful delays.

"If Thine Enemy Hunger"

Ex-President Hoover summarized his survey of the food situation in Germany in one word. "Grim" is the term he employed to tell of the near-famine plight of the people in that enemy state.

So "grim" is it that the United States and Britain are advised to spend $384,000,000 to tide the population over the next six months—that is, until German gardens and farms start to supply some substantial part of the country's food requirements.

This is in line with what was already known of the position. In the British and American occupation zones the population are on relief, with no prospect of any change until the crops not yet sown come into maturity. The occupational authorities have made this clear. Mr. Hoover's report is confirmation. Its immediate purpose is to bolster President Truman's request that Congress vote a heavy appropriation for German relief.

The occupation officials have also indicated that in part the food—and other—scarcities are due to failure of the populace to make as strong an effort to provide for themselves as they might have made. This is a poor recommendation to generosity from outside sources. It will have to be overlooked if relief is to be continued in measure large enough to avert general starvation.

But, Mr. Hoover pointedly suggests, it will be cheaper to feed the hungry than to maintain order in a state of semi-starvation. Hunger, extreme and hopeless, breeds desperation. None the less when the destitute have contributed to their own plight by neglecting to make use of their time or by sullenly refusing to do so.

What is not clear is why the whole burden of averting famine should fall upon the United States and Britain. Canada and all the other Allied countries should "chip in," as they did to help smash Hitlerism. These, too, are concerned in preventing hunger-inspired chaos in Germany.

Also, if the lesser Allies put something into the relief fund this will strengthen their claim that they should have something to say about the terms to be laid down in the peace treaty.

The End of the Road

Franz von Papen has ended his long, devious and dishonorable career as a diplomat—in a labor camp. He was sent there by a German court, for having done harm to the fatherland. Not long ago he escaped hanging as a war criminal. The sentence is for eight years "at hard labor." Von Papen is 68 years old. He is suffering from hardening of the arteries. There is not much chance that he will live out the term of punishment. If he does, he will emerge stripped of the right to ever again hold public office.

Von Papen's abilities were recognized and rewarded by the Emperor and by Hitler. They were also recognized—and their misuse condemned—in the countries to which he was sent as a representative of Germany. In the end, he is punished, not for his treachery to countries which gave him diplomatic liberties, but for having helped to wreck Germany by his conspiracies on behalf of the Fuehrer.

The historic parallel is Wolsey. Von Papen may reflect that if he served honorably as faithfully as he served a scoundrel master he would not now be condemned by his countrymen.

THE TIMID SOUL

by Webster

MR. MILQUETOAST IS EVEN DOUBTFUL ABOUT REACHING UNDER A LADDER

Who's Expansive?

BY ELMORE PHILPOTT

It seems unfortunate that, before protesting, the Soviet Foreign Minister did not read the full cross-examining of Mr. Dean Acheson by Senator McClellan. For the U.S. Undersecretary of State was friendly to Russia—not otherwise. The pertinent extracts are these:

Senator McClellan: Mr. Acheson, you certainly know that Russia has general control PHILPOTT of a number of nations around her . . . do you not believe that if she gets the bomb discovery she may take not only the remainder of Europe but perhaps the remainder of the world?

Mr. Acheson: Senators, I don't think this is a question capable of being answered the way you asked it. . . . I think that one of the great efforts which every one is making in the United Nations is to attempt to find means of solving problems of that sort. If those means can be found there is hope that there will not be major clashes.

RUSSIAN POLICY is "aggressive and expanding" in the local sense it was used by Mr. Acheson—that is, in regard to that part of Europe liberated by Russian arms alone—from the physical control of German Fascism. It is equally true that Russia has been "aggressive" in liquidating social set-ups within those countries which—left undisturbed—would have maintained feudalism and maybe even revived

Fascism as soon as the Red Army withdrew.

The motive of all this seems "defensive" and not "offensive" to me.

General Marshall's reply to Mr. Molotov's first protest seemed sensible. Marshall did not argue whether Russian policy was "aggressive." He stood behind his aide's duty to give frank answers in inquiries.

But, in point of plain fact, there is no more evidence that the Soviet Union is "aggressive and expansive" than that the United States or Britain is.

IN THE SAME papers in which General Marshall's reply is headlined on page one by the anti-Russian Hearst press I find this news item on page nine: "Iceland may get State Aid"

Introduction of a resolution inviting Iceland to become a state in the (U.S.) Union was promised for this week . . . to be followed within a few days by a House act instructing the State department to renew negotiations for the purchase of Greenland from Denmark.

The report states that member after member expressed the feeling that Russia is beclouding her real intent . . . while boxing the United States with territorial moves.

IT IS TO HELP damp down such inflammatory talk and expansive moves that our own Canadian Prime Minister, Mr. King, has had to deny that the U.S. ever "asked" for bases across our northern frontier.

This "denial" by the way has left the New York Times goosely-eyed—for it was the highly responsible James Reston of the New York Times who reported several of the requests in this connection.

Russia—like the United States and Britain—emerged from World War II in physical control of territory beyond her 1939 borders. Britain, for instance, controls almost one million square miles of land taken in Africa from Italy's armies. The U.S. got many British bases in exchange for old destroyers and took vast island areas from the Japs—all of which she obviously (and I think justifiably) intends to keep.

Russia put her western boundary at the Curzon line—which was fixed as right and proper at the 1919 peace conference—at a time when the whole western world had ganged up on the young revolutionary outcast.

RUSSIA IS the only one of the three great powers to have LESS territory under her sovereign power now than when World War I started in 1914. For the cars ruled all of Finland, and Poland went to Warsaw.

Before the Russian-Japanese war of 1904 the Russian armies were in physical control of all Manchuria, and a century before that—up till 1825—the Russians occupied not only Alaska but all this Pacific coast of Canada and the present U.S.A. down to San Francisco.

There is no more false legend than that Russia has been "expanding for centuries." The contrary is true.

Irrigation in the West—2

BY H. G. LONG

Why irrigate? Why spend $40 or $60 an acre to carry water to land to produce more crops? Is it economically sound and feasible?

These questions are asked. Especially were they asked in the dreary thirties when Canada's big task was to find markets for what was being produced without irrigation.

But the question is not asked by those on the farms in semi-arid districts of the Prairie West—in the Palliser triangle. All they want is water, if they can get it, and the economic stability it brings to their farms. They remember the dust bowl, they fear it may come again.

Take the short grass country lying between Lethbridge and Swift Current. The Southeastern corner of Alberta has an average rainfall of 12 inches a year. It has ranged all the way from six to 26 inches. Wheat is unlikely to give a harvest unless you have over 10 inches of rain. In that area wheat averages 13 bushels per acre. In five out of ten years the crop is below what is needed to provide a fair existence for the farmer.

BUT APPLY irrigation water to this bald-headed prairie and a transformation takes place. Reservoirs dot the land, irrigation laterals criss-cross it like nerves. On the dry land side of the road the range grass will carry one steer to 40 acres. On the irrigated side pastures will carry two cattle to the acre for the grazing season. Instead of 13-bushel average wheat crops the average is around 30 bushels. Alfalfa yields three to four tons per acre under the ditch, barley 60 bushels and oats up to 75 and 100.

The water in the ditches applied to a fertile land whose plant food has not been leached out by heavy rains will produce phenomenal crops which are the foundation for a livestock enterprise that is not dependent on the weather. Indeed, the irrigated acres of Southern Alberta are the market for the unfinished cattle and lambs which come in off the ranges each fall. They are the foundation, too, for a stable dairy industry. And, of course, for the sugar beet, vegetable canning and allied processing industries which draw their raw materials from the irrigated acres.

The dry land acre on the south eastern Alberta cattle ranch which produced 65 cents worth of beef in 1946 produced 13 tons of sugar beets worth more than $130 when it was put to work raising sugar beets under the ditch. The dry land was worth $2 to $10 an acre; the irrigated land $100 to $150 an acre.

BUT UNTIL the West fills up with a lot more people, the big value of the fingers of irrigation which will be pushed out into the cattle country will come from the stabilization which it will bring to the agriculture which is already there. It is held by irrigation economists that irrigation in South Alberta will stabilize dry land agriculture to the extent of 40 acres dry land for each acre under the ditch in a given community.

Remembering the relief which had to be poured into the dry areas during the thirties it is not difficult to understand that Dominion and provincial governments have come to the conclusion that they cannot afford not to assist in the extension of areas for which water may be found available. And that is a relatively small area. There is no fear that irrigation in the Prairies will ever be overdone. There is 25 times as much land which would be benefited by irrigation as there is water in the streams of the Eastern Slope to irrigate them.

WHY SHOULD governments help finance irrigation projects as they decided to do in South Alberta? Besides the reasons outlined above there is the very good reason that, until an irrigation project's farmers are well established and have the "know how" of irrigation, they cannot carry the capital cost of the projects. The railways which built the first projects in South Alberta tried to make the settlers pay the per acre cost of the construction of the irrigation enterprises. They found it couldn't be done. The settlers on a new irrigated farm needs all his returns for 10 to 20 years to get himself established, and he cannot pay capital charges and interest of $3 to $5 per acre each year along with the maintenance and operation costs of around $1.25 per acre annually. If he pays the latter charge, which he must if the project is to continue in operation, he is doing about all he can.

SO NOW The Dominion and Alberta governments have got together and are helping build the new projects. The Dominion, in the case of the St. Mary's Milk River Development, which will cost some $150,000,000, will pay about $7,500,000 which is the cost of the dam, the main ditch and the reservoirs. The Alberta government will take over from there and will build or guarantee the cost of building the lateral ditches of the distribution system. The Alberta government's share of some $7,500,000 will be recovered partly from the farmers in the way of yearly rates spread over a long term. This is the pattern of division of construction costs which will be followed in Alberta, and will likely be followed when irrigation in Southern Saskatchewan is undertaken.

Fewer Fish

Brookville Recorder and Times

The sportsman will be content with less fish and game during coming years if he wishes to preserve these resources. As a matter of fact, he will scarcely have any alternative, because he is now beginning to pay, in a much-reduced supply of fish and game, the inevitable consequence of his lack of foresight and wanton destruction. When the public as a whole begins to realize the seriousness of this situation, perhaps it will realize that it calls for prompt and effective treatment, however painful it may be, and for breach of the fish and game laws becoming something more than the laughing matter it is now popularly considered.

Our Way of Life

By HARPER PROWSE M.L.A.

Like many other people I have fallen into the habit of referring to "the Canadian way of life." One day recently a friend of mine stopped the conversation suddenly by asking me to explain just what I meant when I used that phrase. To me the phrase has a very definite meaning. Yet, when I tried to explain it I found that it wasn't just as simple a matter as I had thought it would be to paint a word picture of my idea. Perhaps it would be well in these days of easy catch-phrases and confused issues to ask ourselves just what we do mean when we use such a phrase.

The Canadian way of life is the way you and I, and our neighbors live. It includes what we believe, our history and traditions, our pride and our shame. But it seems to me that the Canadian way of life is based on one underlying principle—the freedom of the individual to live his life within the framework of our laws and customs as he pleases limited by the understanding that he must not interfere with or jeopardize the same rights possessed by other individuals. It includes the acceptance of all the privileges which our citizenship, our laws, and our country have to offer combined with an equal acceptance of the responsibilities which such privileges must of necessity carry with them.

IT INCLUDES the right of the poor man to be proud of his honest poverty, or, if he prefers, to aspire to riches, and, if he had the ability, to acquire wealth and to enjoy the fruits of his labors and his efforts. It includes the right of the rich to possess wealth and to enjoy the advantages which wealth brings. It includes the right of an individual, regardless of his station in life, whether he be rich or poor, to equal protection from the law, to fair and equal trial if he is accused of breaking the law. It recognizes the dignity and worth of each individual.

The Canadian way of life demands, too, that its citizens should accept their responsibilities. It demands that a man should be willing to offer his life, to safeguard our liberties and our heritage and see that they are passed on undiminished, if not improved, to those who will come after us.

IT DEMANDS that each adult citizen should interest himself in the affairs of his country as a whole; that he should, by his vote intelligently cast, help to select those men whose responsibility it is to govern us and to judge the way they have carried out the tasks they have accepted when they run for public office. It demands that he should bend all his efforts to giving them a better chance in life than he received himself, that they are trained to treasure their rights and privileges and to accept their full burden of responsibilities. It demands that he should, in so far as he is able, make this country the better because he lived in it.

The Cheaper House

By J. H. GRAY

Ottawa: The Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation has just released a "handy" printed book entitled "65 Homes for Canadians." It contains a number of reasonably attractive housing plans, some of which won prizes in a national contest. While it may help an odd Canadian, here and there, to make up his mind about the type of house he wants, it is rather dubious whether it will have any effect on Canada's housing problem.

WHAT CANADA needs are not more designs for fancier houses. It needs houses. It needs houses which the people who want to buy can afford to live in. The most pressing housing problem of the country is to bring housing prices down, to drastically reduce housing costs. This problem has been ignored completely by the architects who concocted the plans for the Central Mortgage book.

Ten years ago, when the National Housing Administration was getting started it also held a national competition. It also turned out a book of housing designs. That book undoubtedly had much to do with re-awakening the urge in Canadians to build themselves a home. The designs were useful and undoubtedly use was made of them. But today the atmosphere has changed. It is no longer necessary to stimulate interest in housing construction. The demand far exceeds the supply. Because the atmosphere has changed different emphasis is needed, a fact seemingly ignored by Central Mortgage.

THE DESIGN competition was for houses that can be built for $6,000. The designs submitted are no more attractive than those of 10 years ago, when the price limit was $4,000. The selected designs, moreover, are all completely beyond the reach of the people who need housing most, those in the less than $2,500 income bracket. A person earning $200 a month cannot afford to pay more than $50 for heat and shelter. Indeed, he would be happier if he could get by with $20 a month.

The $6,000 house, however, will cost him $60 a month on a 25 year mortgage or $65 a month on a 20 year mortgage. To get accommodation he can afford he must buy a house costing not more than $5,000 and finance it over 25 years. None of the prize designs can be built for $5,000 on the prairies and it is doubtful if some of them could be built for $6,000.

THE PRIZE design for the prairies does cut a little new ground. It is a bungalow with a half basement. Thus the cost of putting in a basement is reduced by perhaps a third. Two designs have no basements, another has a partial basement and the balance have full basements.

Another method of cutting costs is to place all the plumbing pipes in one wall. During the war, to conserve material, builders were forced to do so by the government. But of the eight designs in the book for the prairies only two have used the one-wall method.

It may be, perhaps, that the only way to cut housing costs appreciably is by prefabrication on a grand scale. If this is so, thousands of small houses, builders will go out of business. But if the cost of house building can be reduced to a point where the $2,500 a year class can enter the market the demand will be almost without limit.

and carrying and measuring and wondering. It is spent in putting in basements that are not essential. It is spent "building-in" fixtures that will eventually be torn out.

NO ONE CAN blame the high cost of housing on Central Mortgage. Perhaps it is unfair to criticize this department for not doing anything constructive about reducing housing costs. But if the department had been thinking about reducing costs it would hardly have staged a contest for more housing plans. It would have offered prizes, even a medal or two, for the best methods of reducing housing costs by a third. There are, in fact, only about a dozen basic housing plans. If some one would turn Canadian architects loose on these basic designs with instructions to find out how they could be brought into reach of the $2,500 class more houses would be built.

New York Times

This newspaper would like to give its readers a full report of the proceedings of the forthcoming Moscow conference. As matters stand, it will be greatly handicapped in this effort by an arbitrary decision of the Russian Government, which will limit our representation at the conference to a single correspondent, Cyrus Sulzberger, in addition to our regular correspondent in Moscow, Drew Middleton.

It is self-evident that two correspondents, however competent, cannot do as thorough a job of news reporting as six or eight or a dozen competent correspondents. We have had this larger representation at all of the more important conferences.

The Moscow conference will be of immense importance to the peace and security of all nations, because it will deal with

Britain May Keep Rent Tribunals

LONDON, (Reuters) — Rent tribunals—in adjudicate between landlords and tenants when questions of excessive charges are raised—have been so successful in Britain during the first six months of operation that the Ministry of Health, the department responsible for housing, is considering their extension.

 At present there are 72 tribunals throughout Great Britain and since their inauguration under the Furnished Rent Control Act sponsored by Health Minister Bevan, the public generally has come to regard them as part of the every-day machinery available for the settling of rent disputes.

Flyers Drop Final To Lethbridge 5-3

LETHBRIDGE, March 3 (CP)—Lethbridge Maple Leafs Saturday night defeated Edmonton Flyers of the Western Canada Senior Hockey League 5-3 in the final game of the schedule. The result did not affect the standings. Flyers now hold second place in the league; Lethbridge is in third spot.

The Leafs were never headed. They led 2-0 at the end of the first period and 3-2 by the finish of the second. Don Menzies, with three goals and an assist and Steve Latoski with four assists, led the point-getting parade.

BING JUKES and Ralph Luke, with a goal apiece, were other goal-getters for Leafs. Johnny Black, Fred Smitten and Elmer Kreller scored the Flyer tallies.

Leafs went ahead at 3:08 of the first period when Jukes and Latoski teamed to score. Though Leafs had the best of the play they didn't score again until Luke, Menzies and Latoski assisting made an end-to-end rush to beat McAuley with two seconds of the period remaining.

FLYERS RALLIED to tie the score in the second period. Kreller scored with Merluk assisting at 1:40, and Black knotted the count about 10 minutes later on a gangling play. But Leafs took the lead again when Latoski rifled a perfect pass to Menzies with four minutes of period time to go.

Menzies scored again after three minutes of the third to put Leafs two up again, but Flyers were back in the battle within five minutes on a nicely-executed goal by Smitten. Only 52 seconds later, Menzies scored his third of the night to seal the game up for the Leafs.

JACK MANSON, youthful sub-goaltender for Edmonton Flyers, played in the Lethbridge nets and made 22 stops, some of which brought cheers from the crowd of more than 2,000.

Inter-City Baseball To Commence May 14

Big Four Senior Baseball League has been adopted as the name of the new inter-city circuit which will operate in Calgary and Edmonton next season and the schedule will open on Wednesday, May 14.

Sam Timmins and J. A. Williams represented Calgary teams, and John Duncy looked after Edmonton interests at a meeting held here yesterday. A further meeting will be held in Red Deer shortly and names of the four clubs and league officials will then be announced.

THE SCHEDULE will run through to August 17 and tentative plans for the first half call for six games each week — Tuesdays and Wednesdays in both cities. One game every Friday, along with a Saturday doubleheader and a single fixture on Sundays are proposed for Edmonton, with double bills for both Saturday and Sunday in Calgary.

Each city will have two clubs in the new loop and playoffs will follow completion of the regular league schedule, a three-out-of-five semi-final series between second and third teams determining a finalist to meet the top club for the championship.

The Spalding was adopted as the official ball for the league and every possible effort will be made to assure good competitive baseball to supplement the traditional Calgary-Edmonton rivalry.

Longridge and Belyea Garner Shuttle Titles

Frank Longridge of Saskatoon walked off with the lion's share of prizes here yesterday when he defended his Alberta provincial men's badminton championship and along with partners copped the men's and mixed doubles titles.

E. Corbett, Calgary, president of the Alberta Badminton Association, presented the prizes.

Edmonton came in for a good share of the championships, too, for Lois Belyea triumphed in the ladies' singles and teamed with Marshall to win the ladies' doubles crown.

THE SINGLES CHAMPIONS will compete in the Canadian championships at Vancouver this week. Longridge is already enroute to the coast and Lois will leave early this week.

Longridge was given a stern battle in the men's singles final when he bumped into Ingall, of Edmonton. The champ extended to the first set 15-13 and dropped to take the next two 15-10 and 15-12.

THE SASKATOON are teamed with Ingall in the doubles competition and had little difficulty disposing of Dave Clapperton and A. Maguire, Calgary, 15-8 and 15-4. Longridge was paired with Moore, also of Saskatoon, in the mixed doubles. They defeated Dave Clapperton and Barbara Hackney in a hard-fought match 15-13, 15-7.

Belyea and Marshall combined to score an easy victory over Miss Beattie McAvoy and Cal Holmgren in the final of the ladies' doubles. The scores were 15-3 and 15-8.

SEMI-FINALS:
Men's Singles — Longridge, Saskatoon, 15-8, 15-10, 15-10.
Ladies' Singles — Belyea, Edmonton, 15-3, 15-8.

FREEZING LONDONERS FOLLOW COAL WAGON HOPING FOR PRECIOUS FUEL

BUILDERS RUSH NEW HOUSING PROJECT FOR N.Y.C. HOMELESS

FLOWERS FOR A ROYAL DAUGHTER—Like all Hollanders, this little girl hoped the flowers she hands to a palace guard would be for a royal son. It turned out to be a fourth daughter, however, born to Princess Juliana a few days after this young well-wisher presented her bouquet.

DRINK HEARTY, YOUNG FELLOW—A motherless four-week-old pup named "Mite" gets a helping hand at feeding time from his three-year-old mistress, Linda Beth Welch, in Akron, O.

MOM'S A TOUGHY—And she's sure watching out for those two cubs almost buried under her. The babies saw first light of day in a van coming into New York City. When the photographer shot this picture, Toughy took a swipe at him.

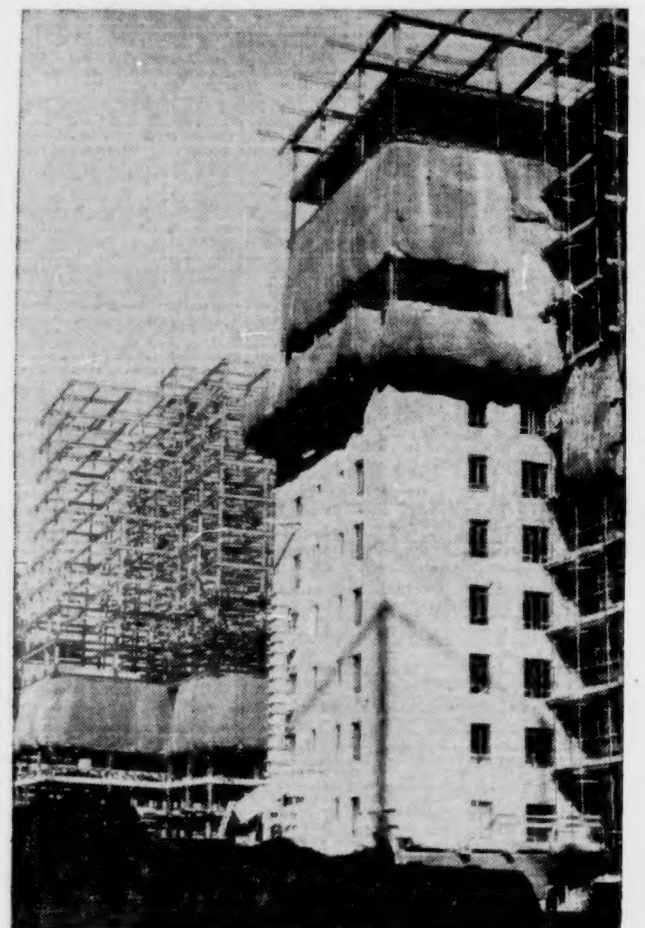

CALIFORNIA SPECIAL—If a Wyoming Legislator has his way, visiting California cars may have to don flags and bells like these Patrick Desmond and Steve Wayne of Los Angeles put on their car. The legislator says California drivers are a high-way hazard.

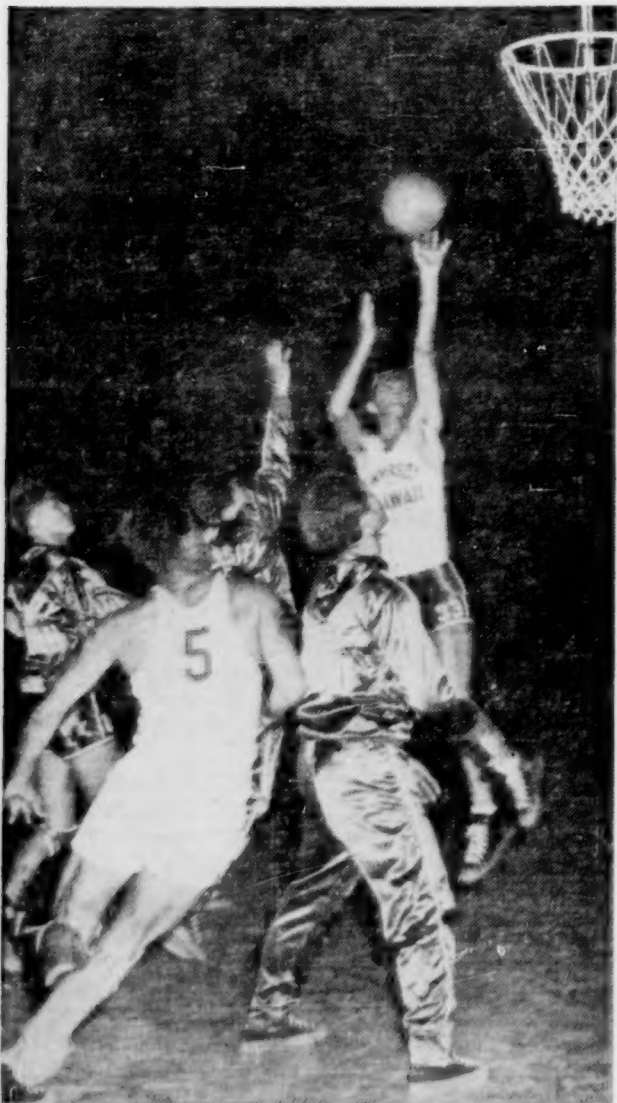

BUSINESS brought Sidi Mohamad Barada of Arabia to New York City. But he's all set for big city dangers with the long dagger he's wearing after arrival by plane.

THEY MOURN A SHORTAGE—Like a funeral procession, these freezing Londoners follow a coal wagon in hopes the coal man will have some of his precious cargo left over to sell after he has taken care of his regular customers. London's fuel shortage is the worst in years.

PRETTY PICTURE FOR HOMELESS—The steel skeleton of this New York City housing development begins to take the shape of an apartment as walls rise on one of the new units.

STRETCH!—It was only a practice, but this University of Hawaii basketball team turned on all its power to thrill during a workout at the 69th Regiment Armory in New York City. They made their first public appearance at Madison Square Garden.

TEA TASTER AT WORK—Expert Robert A. Lewis of Boston spits out a sample of tea at the first post-war meeting of the U. S. Board of Tea Experts in New York, where 500 samples were judged to set new standards for the beverage.

CONFESSOR—Frank F. Hertie, 28, calmly drinks a milk bottle full of coffee in Chicago after confessing the murder of two women in 1941. He surrendered in Akron, O.

FIRE BUSTS UP A BUS LINE—Charred timbers frame burned-out busses destroyed in a general-alarm fire which raged for six hours in a bus company garage at North Tonawanda, N. Y. The fire destroyed five of company's 11 busses, caused damage estimated by firemen at $150,000.

Says Men Prefer Foibles in Wives

A young bride-to-be tells me that she is going to try to be the perfect wife. Um, hum. A laudable ambition and one with which most young wives start out. But how does the old spiritual go? "Everybody that talks about Heaven ain't going there." And it is that way about marriage.

Probably every bride thinks she is going to scrap her temper and her nerves and her arguing habit and her bossiness at the altar, and that she will no longer have a yen for pretty clothes and good times. All that she will want to make her perfectly happy will be just to burn incense before her husband.

But, alas and alack, it seldom happens that way. Generally the bride's plan of being the perfect wife goes blotto, and by the time Angel Face and her Dream Man have gotten their wedding presents unpacked, they have reverted to type and are fighting over the coffee tasting like dish water and arguing over the bills, just like other married couples.

NOW FAR be it from me to wet-blanket any young bride's effort to be a perfect wife. Heaven knows husbands, even the best of them are kittle cattle to deal with possessed of strange tastes and habit peculiarities which no bride suspected her husband of having. This makes it impossible for any wife to ever come up to her husband's ideal, unless she is a miracle-worker who can run her house on air and who lets him tell her what he thinks she should do.

Not being able to perform these parlor tricks makes many a bride feel that she has fallen down in her efforts to be a perfect wife. Else, why, she tearfully asks herself, should John be always criticizing her, instead of complimenting her and telling her how lucky he is to have gotten a combined glamour girl and cash register for a wife? So I will give this crumb of comfort to the young wives who feel that they have not come up to their husband's expectations.

Quit trying to be a perfect wife. You can't be one. And if you could, your husband wouldn't want you. The last thing that any man desires is a perfect wife. She would present a too individual comparison to himself. A wife who was always right, who never said or did a foolish thing or made a mistake, would drive any man to drink or the divorce courts. What every husband wants is a wife who is a blundering human being like himself, whom he can bawl out and forgive when she does something silly, and kiss and make up and feel noble.

DON'T TAKE your husband's fault-finding too seriously. Half the time it is just his way of blowing his own horn and calling your attention to what a grand husband he is, and how thankful you should be that God vouchsafed you one who could give you a good home and a car and a charge account at the best stores. When he complains about your ruining him with your extravagance he doesn't really want you to pinch pennies and look as if you came off of the bargain counter. He is just showing off. He wants you to be a living advertisement of what a go-getter he is.

If you look about you, you will see that men don't hunt out the superior girls for wives. They pick out ones who make them feel like they are little tin gods. Nor are the dormant wives the best loved and the best treated ones by their husbands. Quite the contrary. Men like wives who are good sparring partners. It is no fun in kicking around a woman who won't fight back and who makes her husband feel like a heel.

And so it goes. Every man wants a good wife, but not a perfect wife. Which may not be according to Hoyle, but is according to life.

THE BOY WHOM FRANCE FORGOT

A little over 123 years ago, a boy was born who seemed destined to rule over a great empire. His father was Napoleon Bonaparte, emperor of the French, a man whose name was a terror to all Europe. His mother was the empress Marie Louise, a daughter of the emperor of Austria, whom Napoleon had married as his second wife after he had divorced the empress Josephine.

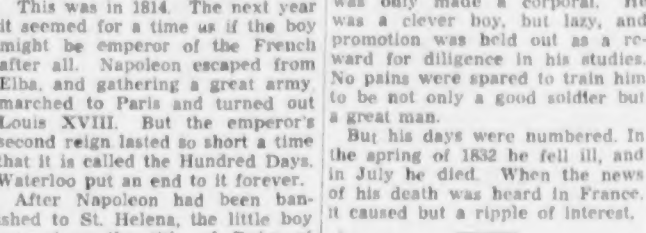

The baby's birth on March 20, 1811, was announced by the salute of many guns. He was given the title of King of Rome. It seemed as though he had a great future before him, and yet his short life was pitifully lonely. His early death was a relief to most of the people who thought of his existence at all, and his name is scarcely mentioned in the histories.

Francis Joseph Charles Bonaparte was born when Napoleon was at the height of his power. But before the prince was three years old, Napoleon had been defeated by the bitter cold of the Russian winter. All Europe had combined against him. He had fought and lost the great Battle of the Nations at Leipzig. As the armies of the allies neared Paris, Marie Louise fled from the city, taking the King of Rome with her, and Napoleon never again saw his son.

The emperor was sent into exile on the little island of Elba in the Mediterranean. Marie Louise, who did not care for her husband, made no effort to go to him, and was quite content to obey her father's command to give him up. She was made Duchess of Parma and two other small Italian states. The title of King of Rome was taken from her son.

This was in 1814. The next year it seemed for a time as if the boy might be emperor of the French after all. Napoleon escaped from Elba, and gathering a great army, marched to Paris and turned out Louis XVIII. But the emperor's second reign lasted so short a time, that it is called the Hundred Days. Waterloo put an end to it forever.

After Napoleon had been banished to St. Helena, the little boy was given the title of Duke of Reichstadt by his grandfather, and it was destined that he should never rule. By this time, Marie Louise had gone to live in her Napoleon's son, the child King of Rome, whom France forgot.

He admired his father so much that he was delighted when he learned that his grandfather wished him to become a soldier. It was a great day for him when he got his first uniform, though he was only made a corporal. He was a clever boy, but lazy, and promotion was held out as a reward for diligence in his studies. No pains were spared to train him to be not only a good soldier but a great man.

But his days were numbered. In the spring of 1832 he fell ill, and in July he died. When the news of his death was heard in France, it caused but a ripple of interest.

some feedings and 3½ between some others. But it will be regular at those levels.

One baby with whom I am very familiar put himself on a four-hour schedule almost from the first month. But the schedule hours differed daily. Sometimes he woke at night at two o'clock and again at four. He tended to sleep eight hours between his last daytime feeding and the middle of the night one, and then four hours for the second period. As he worked toward all-night sleeping the hour for the first night feeding got later and later and this threw the first day's feeding off. For, if he woke as late as 4:30 or 5 a.m. that put his first morning feeding at 8:30 to 9 o'clock. Gradually this moved itself out and he is now waking as late as 6:30 and 7 and this gets him onto a good daylight schedule of only four feedings.

At three months he weighs over 14 pounds, gets 13 ounces of canned milk, 20 of boiled water and 3½ tablespoons of corn syrup. He is slightly dissatisfied on only 3 tablespoons of syrup and the half tablespoon more pushed him over to all-night sleeping.

It is so easy to get discouraged the first three months and think the baby will never sleep at night, or get onto four feedings a day. When his nourishment is right or him he'll sleep without difficulty.

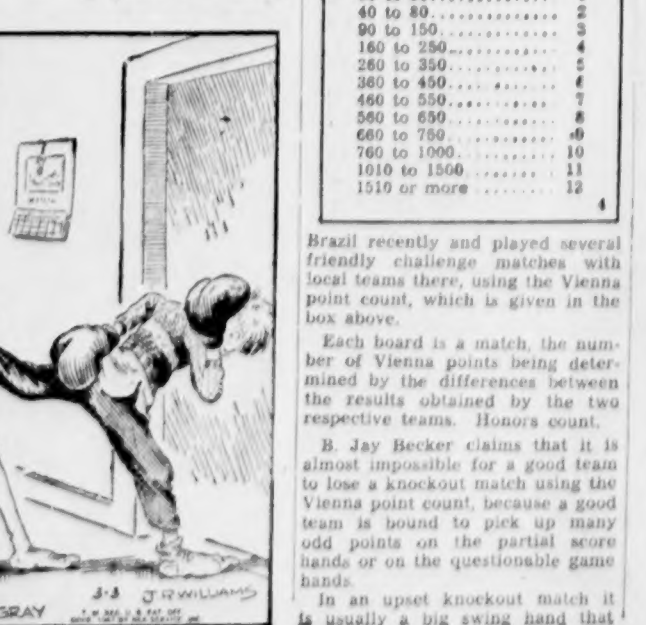

Our leaflet No. 22 "Formulas and Early Feeding," may be had by sending a stamped, self-addressed envelope with this request to Myrtle Meyer Eldred in care of The Edmonton Bulletin.

WHY MOTHERS GET GRAY

Why Grow Old?

Girls who want to be models will need nearly perfect figures, says Josephine Lowman. A look at Actress Leslie Brooks (above) will give you an idea of the requirements.

Q "I am a girl of only 14 but I have many gray hairs. The kids at school keep talking about it and it makes me feel foolish. Should I pull them out and how can I prevent them from increasing?"

A I suggest that you consult your physician about this for it is unusual to have gray hairs at your age. You may find that it comes from a vitamin deficiency.

Q "I am 16 years old. I would like information about growing taller. Can you advise me?"

A Improve your posture and give time a chance. You probably have not reached your full height this soon. Many young men and women grow after they are 16 and quite a bit later.

Brazil recently played several friendly challenge matches with local teams there, using the Vienna point count, which is given in the box above.

Each board is a match, the number of Vienna points being determined by the differences between the results obtained by the two respective teams. Honors count.

It is almost impossible for a good team to lose a knockout match using the Vienna point count, because a good team is bound to pick up many odd points on the partial score hands or on the questionable game hands.

In an upset knockout match it is usually a big swing hand that powder and cannot see why my face has gotten this way. Could it be faulty diet or what?"

A. Many persons have a tendency to flushed face. The old idea was that this is a question of diet. Many up-to-date skin specialists now believe that diet has no influence. Some believe that smoking is bad when this condition is present while others say it has no effect. In other words little is known about it. If you wish to try diet the list to avoid consists of highly seasoned foods, hot foods, chocolate, tea, coffee, alcohol, cheese, fried foods and pastries.

Q "I am only 20 but I have a disturbing beauty problem. I have nice eyes and long lashes but my eyelids are always puffy. I get plenty of sleep and fresh air. Is there anything one can do about this?"

A. Have a physical examination to be sure that everything is sound. If you find it is I would suggest that you strongly suspect an allergy of some sort. In that case take the tests in order to find out what is causing the swelling.

Q "How does one go about being a model?" Is five foot, three inches, too small for modeling?"

A. In the first place your figure must be just about perfect. Most models are much taller than you are but there might be some spots you could fit in. Why not write to one of the Modeling Schools for more accurate information?

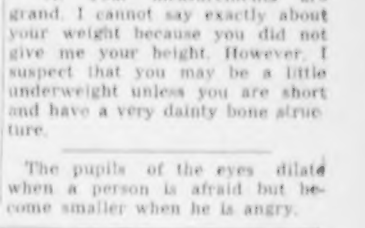

Q "I am asking about my measurements and weight. I am 16 years old and weigh 112 pounds. My bust is 33 inches; waist 24 inches; hips 33 inches. Please put this in the paper so I will see it."

A. Your measurements are grand. I cannot say exactly about your weight because you did not give me your height. However, I suspect that you may be a little underweight unless you are short and have a very dainty bone structure.

The trouble with teaching children to obey persons rather than law and right, is that later on some persons may come into their lives who should not be obeyed.

Montreal, Toronto Stocks

MONTREAL, (CP)—Dealings continued quiet on the stock exchange and curb market Monday and there was no evidence of trends.
 Montreal Power was the bright spot with the stock ceiling at 24, high for this year, and touching 24 1/2 at times.
 Base metals and oils were quiet. Mines saw little change.

TORONTO, (CP)—Prices on the stock exchange eased back as volume dropped to about 1,200,000 shares. Rumors that Premier is about to wind up operations sent that stock down to about 80 cents for a loss of 34 cents while Omega, to end operations April 30, went down a few cents.
 Senior golds, base metals and papers were down. Utilities and oils were quiet and western oils were down.

New York Stocks

NEW YORK, (AP)—The stock market steadied in spots Monday when the supreme court again failed to hand down a John L. Lewis decision, but losers were plentiful and dealings sluggish.
 The direction generally was downward. Steels hardened a bit in the fourth hour and plus signs cropped up elsewhere.
 Canadian Pacific, Hiram Walker and Distillers Seagrams all lost 1/4 among Canadian issues and Dome Mines was unchanged.

Grain Shipments Below Minimum

WINNIPEG, (CP)—The movement of grain from prairie points to Vancouver terminals was still more than 100 cars below the minimum established last Feb. 14, Assistant Chief Commissioner W. McNamee of the Canadian wheat board said here Saturday.

"If we are to fulfill our desired deliveries to west coast ports within the Feb. 14-March 30 period it will be necessary to move 270 cars daily, a number which at the moment the railways cannot supply," he said. The daily minimum quota of cars established Feb. 14 was 240.

He described the rail transportation situation as showing "signs of improvement" but "it was still definitely not up to the desired standard."

The same situation he said applied to country loadings where the minimum quota of approximately 850 cars daily was being missed by 150 to 200 cars.

The car shortage resulted in lakehead terminal receipts for the last week being down about 1,000,000 bushels.

9 Carlots of Eggs Are Shipped Away

During the week seven carloads of eggs were sent here to the special products board for export and one carlot moved interprovincially through trade channels. Other sales included 250 cases of eggs for Yellowknife.

MORE CHEQUES MOVE

OTTAWA, (CP)—Cheques cashed against individual accounts during January rose almost four percent over the same month last year, amounting to $6,215,840,000, the bureau of statistics reported. Ontario was the exception, showing a nine percent decrease.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE

NEW YORK, (CP)—The Canadian dollar was unchanged at a discount of five percent in terms of United States funds in mid-day foreign exchange dealings Monday. The pound sterling was unchanged at $4.02 1/2.

Meat Prices Drop By Fall Anticipated

WASHINGTON, (AP)—The agriculture department has renewed its forecast that some United States meat prices will drop by fall.

Prices of hogs and lambs are expected to continue near current levels it said, but prices of better grade slaughter cattle probably will decline at least moderately.

Reporting a steady decline in the purchasing power of salary and wage earners during the last several months, the department said "this and other important economic (forces) suggest a downturn in general business activity during the latter part of 1947" and a weakened demand for meats.

Reports from farmers indicate the department said, that this spring's pig crop — which will go to market as fattened hogs next fall and winter — will be considerably larger than a year ago. Feed supplies are more plentiful and prices are such as to encourage expanded breeding.

WITHDRAW RAIL LISTING

LONDON, (Reuters)—South American Railway market jobbers have decided to stop quoting prices on the London exchange, thus making dealing a matter of negotiation only.

The development follows a plan for the subdivision of the $150,000,000 ($600,000,000) purchase price among the six interested underwriters. Nominal prices obtainable at the close showed no material alteration from the overnight quotations.

Musical Experiment Made

Find Young People Appreciate Symphony

An experiment in testing the appreciation by high school students, of standard and classical music performed by a symphony orchestra was held at the Strand theatre on Sunday afternoon, and proved successful. The experimental organization was the Edmonton Philharmonic Orchestra and in the role of sponsor was the Women's Musical Club. The city school board co-operated in arranging the distribution of tickets.

THE IMPRESSION that the sound of today's music and like that of the past was appreciated. The young people of today showed that they like and appreciate good music and there is no doubt that their appreciation would increase more rapidly were they given more opportunities to hear it.

To the young people who have known only the sound of modern music, the sound of the symphony orchestra was a revelation. They heard the mellow tones of the horn, they heard the carrying of the violin and heard that trumpet, trombone and clarinet can be instruments of inexpressible beauty.

THE EXPRESSIONS of the young people's faces, as well as their applause testified to their appreciation of good music.

The orchestra, with Abe Frank conducting played unusually well. A program of lighter works had been chosen and all had been played at previous concerts. Therefore, it was only to be expected that the standard of performance would be equal to the best the orchestra has done.

Included were the "William Tell" overture, Rossini; MacDowell's "A Wild Rose"; Volstead's "Jolly Fellowship Waltz"; Rimsky-Korsakov's "Flight of the Bumble Bee"; Knipper's "Mendelssohn's Song"; and the "Clock" Symphony, Brahms; Hungarian Dances No. 5 and 6 and Elgar's "Pomp and Circumstance March" from the Trio section of which comes the refrain of the song "Land of Hope and Glory."

FRANK WILLIAMS, baritone, was the soloist and sang "Jeanie Kern's ever welcome 'O! Man River' from 'Show Boat' and Mana Zucca's popular song 'I Love Life'.

Commentary was given by Vernon Barford to explain both orchestra and music. He explained the workings of the various sections of the orchestra.

During the intermission, J. C. McDonald, chairman of the school board, thanked the Women's Musical Club for sponsoring the event and said that in view of the capacity audience and the evident enjoyment the students were receiving, he hoped it would be possible to present a similar concert next year. He said it was gratifying to note the increasing appreciation of good music among young people—J. O.

Final ruling on the loan must be obtained from the board of governors of the university, before the agreement is completed.

Actual construction of the building is pending the final agreements between the university and the government. The idea of the building has been mooted in university circles for many years and this loan taken is the first step in its construction.

To Build Cabins For Hunters' Use

Four modern cabins for the convenience of big-game hunters and fishing parties, will be erected 17 miles north of Entrance in the foothills of the Rockies, east of Jasper by Alan Innes-Taylor, former commanding officer of the U.S. Army Arctic Training school in Edmonton, and a member of Admiral Richard Byrd's Antarctic expedition before the war.

MR. INNES-TAYLOR, one-time member of the RCMP in the Yukon, is operating a beaver-raising farm near Entrance and the hunters' cabins will be built on his property.

He will have saddle and pack horses at the disposal of hunting parties and will also employ three skilled guides.

Top Ranking Radio Announcers Form CFRN Air Personalities

Williamson Known From West to East

GORDON WILLIAMSON
Gordon Williamson, veteran sports writer and announcer, was born in Stratford, Ont. For 23 years he has specialized in sports—in the newspapers and over the air. He is one of the most travelled sports commentators in Canada, having broadcast sports events in California, Michigan, Toronto, Montreal, and numerous other widely separated points. Gordon joined the R.C.A.F. as an A.C. 2, general armorer, and transferred to public relations while still in Canada. He rose to the rank of flight lieutenant overseas. On March 17, 1944, he got Edmonton to adopt the 418th Intruder sqdn., which from that time was known as the City of Edmonton Squadron. Gordon wrote a book about this famous squadron while he was still in the air force. In 1945 he returned to Edmonton and became CFRN's sports announcer and commentator.

Dramatic Talent Quality in Voice

For the listener, the voices of radio stations are the most important element of their station. Announcers are therefore selected with the greatest of care and must possess the voice qualities, dramatic talent and the business in radio required to make a successful announcer.

CFRN has always been fortunate in having first class announcers. The talents of Williamson, Blackwood, Drysdale, McGavin, Roskin, Cruikshank, Rennie and Johnson are many and varied. Among them is to be found a voice and manner suited to any type of broadcast.

The majority of these announcers are Edmonton-born and educated, and nearly everyone has seen service in our armed forces.

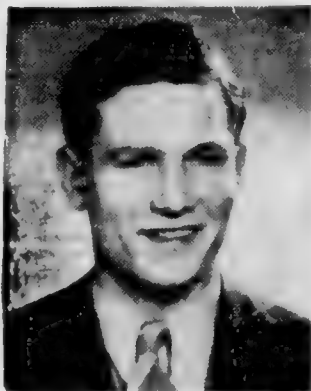

McKinnon Director Of Public Relations

LEO MCKINNON
Leo McKinnon, director of CFRN's public relations department, has had wide experience in this new field of business. His earliest associations with radio were as a free-lance writer of radio programs on the Pacific coast. At Vancouver he joined the public relations branch of the C.P. Airline, and was at once moved to Edmonton where his work took him to practically all C.P.A. offices from Montreal to Fairbanks. After termination of his airline public relations work, Mr. McKinnon spent a brief time with an oil supply company in Calgary, and then as counsel on employee-employer relations with the U.S. Army Air Forces in Edmonton. It was in July, 1946, that he joined forces with CFRN. In addition to his public relations work with the station he finds time to script "Wings North," a popular show, dramatizing experiences of Edmonton's famous "bush pilots."

JIM DRYSDALE
Who works pretty regularly with Gordon Williamson on sports summaries and on special events.

DAVID CRUIKSHANK
Whose voice is the first you hear each morning as CFRN signs on. Dave also does news and remote broadcasts and special events.

TOM RENNIE
One of the announcers heard in the evenings over CFRN, Tom has done character roles in dramatic productions for the CBC.

Blackwood Heads Announcer Staff

CLAUDE BLACKWOOD
Claude Blackwood, chief announcer, comes from British Columbia, was born in Victoria, received public and high school training in Vancouver. His first job on graduation, was with the Vancouver Stock Exchange in the statistics branch. Several years later, Claude started his radio career when in 1939 he joined the staff of station CKWX, then CKCD, Vancouver. He left radio in 1941 to join the R.C.A.F. During his term of service with the air force, Claude directed a number of radio shows for the R.C.A.F. One of these, "Variety Time with Canada's Airmen," originated from No. 3 Manning Depot in Edmonton. While in Edmonton with the air force, Claude grew to like this city and determined to make his home here after the war. In October, 1945, he joined the announcing staff of CFRN.

BOB MCGAVIN
Who is CFRN's "swing" expert Bob is also noted as the station's outstanding "disc-jockey."

JERRY JOHNSON
Who does special events and feature broadcasts, such as "Talking from Tuck," the Saturday morning report from University Campus.

LEW ROSKIN
Who is the announcer usually heard on CFRN news broadcasts. Lew previously announced at CJOC, Lethbridge, and CJOB, Winnipeg.

Barn Dance Program Always Popular

CFRN's barn dance is a 10-year institution at the broadcasting studio. Currently featured in the Saturday night hoe-down is Gaby Haas and His Rhythm Rangers. Gaby is the man in the back row with the accordion. The vocalist, Dixie Dean, is at the 'mike.' Jerry Forbes is the writer and producer of the show, while the corn-lovin' emcee is Bob McGavin.

CFRN Marks New Step On Telephone Centenary

Staff of CFRN are all happy to note a coincidence in connection with its great forward step to a new era of development on March 8, for that is the 100th anniversary date of the birth of Sir Alexander Graham Bell, inventor of the telephone—granddaddy of the modern "mike."

To honor the memory of Bell, who invented the telephone while living in Brantford, Ont., the Telephone City, Canada is issuing a special commemorative postage stamp, of beautiful design. This four-cent issue of larger than usual size of the letter stamp, goes on sale first at Brantford Monday.

CFRN will become the most powerful radio station in central and northern Alberta at 7:55 p.m. Monday when Premier Manning throws a switch changing the station's power from 1,000 to 5,000 watts.

Throwing of the switch will be made at a ceremony in the Trocadero ballroom before an audience of about 500 invited guests, including advertisers and friends of the radio station, as well as civic and provincial government officials.

The proceedings will be broadcast and a special invitation has been issued to listeners to hear the impressive program.

It Will be a National Event

At 8:30 p.m., a special coast-to-coast program will be broadcast by CFRN from the Trocadero, featuring some of the province's finest talent and typical of the "stars of radio" the station has developed and featured as a public service during its 12 years of operation.

Premier Manning also will speak over the coast-to-coast hook up, the program being carried by the dominion network of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation.

Among those to be heard on this special program will be Bob McMullen and his orchestra, playing "It's a Great Day," with Percy Brown handling the vocal.

Edmonton Artists

"Let My Song Fill Your Heart," a modern Viennese waltz by the American composer, Ernest Charles, has been selected by Miss Kay Zender as her part of the program.

Frank Williams, popular Edmonton baritone, will sing "Of Man River."

A medley from the recent New York stage production, "Finian's Rainbow," will be featured by Josephine Chamberlain and Helen Warden.

at the Hammond organ and piano.

"Anniversary Song" Jack Depniston will handle his own accompaniment for the "Anniversary Song," the hit tune recently revived in the movie, "The Jolson Story."

"Wake Up Susan" will be played by Gaby Haas and his Rhythm Rangers, with a finale of all the cast, "Beyond the Blue Horizon."

Special speakers during the continental hook up will be Premier Manning, Mayor Aulay and G.R.A. (Dick) Rice, owner-manager of the station, and a director of the Canadian Association of Broadcasters.

G. R. A. RICE, ONE OF CANADA'S RADIO PIONEERS

George Richard Agar Rice was born at Teddington in Middlesex, England, in 1886. He entered the service of Marconi, the wizard of wireless, at the age of 18. He worked in both office and factory at Chelmsford. It is not surprising that in those impressionable years the magic of radio should have got into his blood.

Radio "In His Blood"
"It must have got into my blood," Dick will tell you, "because I soon determined to make it my life work."

Accordingly, he went to complete his education at the National Physical Laboratories and London College. Then, just prior to the outbreak of World War I, he joined the Marconi British Wireless Service of the Admiralty. He served with this organization throughout the war.

Newspaper—Canada came in 1919 his first radio broadcast. His first station appeared in the Dominion. He came out, what was essentially a look-around visit but what he saw and what he realized brought him back again in 1920. This time he came determined to stay. He would make Canada his homeland and radio his career.

"Difficulties? Plenty of them," he says. "But in 1922 I was on the air in Edmonton, pioneering the western ether with CUCV, which I opened for the Edmonton Journal."

He says little of the hazards encountered in those early days of broadcasting. But others will tell of hectic hours prior to the first broadcast, of temperamental microphones set up on the roof of the Journal building.

Rice "Pioneered"
"Microphones were our major headache," he recalls. "When they failed we never had a replacement handy. We simply made another."

That simple solution of Dick Rice, he tackles complicated problems with simplicity. Hence a job here was won. He did it. This is the one who has done it. Just like that.

After 12 years of pioneering radio was out of its swaddling clothes and was rapidly growing up. New techniques had been evolved. Others were in the making. The glamour factor, fostered by the early, makeshift stations, was a reality. New companies were opening into the spirit of adventure beckoned.

Dick Rice heard his vision reached out again and in 1934 at old voice in a new setting broke into the western airwaves.

The station was owned and operated by the Sunwapta Broadcasting Company. The call letters CFRN incorporated the initials of the owners—"R" for Rice and "N" for E. F. Nielson, a partner in the venture. Mr. Nielson later took over the operation of Radio Sound Service, the public address department of the organization. He is now retired.

The firm name "Sunwapta" intrigued local residents. It was known to vacationists in the mountains as a Stoney word. Students of Indian lore—who by this time numbered Dick Rice as an associate—recalled a translation of the word as "Rippling—or Radiating Waves."

Use Indian Motif

It must have been the poet in Dick Rice that chose such an apt name for the new broadcasting firm. Henceforth, the voice of CFRN would reach out over the airwaves of radio to an ever growing circle of listeners.

Rice was deeply honored by being called to the Ottawa Trade meeting in Washington and was guest of the Mexican government at last year's International Radio convention. He was three times president of the Western Association of Broadcasters, for many years has been a director of the Canadian Association of Broadcasters, and is one of the few Canadian members of H. V. Kaltenbach's Twenty-Years-In-Radio club.

Assistant Manager 12 Years At CFRN

A. J. "Red" Hopps, CFRN's assistant manager, was born in Vancouver and received his public and high school education in Victoria.

After a varied business career

A. J. HOPPS

In many parts of Western Canada he started in radio in July 1934 with station, CPTP. When that station was taken over by CFRN, he continued with the new station as sales representative.

In 1937 Mr. Hopps became commercial manager and last year he was made assistant manager of CFRN, which position includes direction of sales locally and nationally.

He is a member of the Association and Sales Club of the Edmonton Chamber of Commerce, and of the Canadian Club. His sporting interests include golfing and fly fishing.

ON ITS NEW INCREASE IN POWER TO 5,000 WATTS

Such top shows as THE LONE RANGER, THE KENNY BAKER SHOW, PLEASURE PARADE, THE NAME YOU WILL REMEMBER, and HOLLYWOOD OPEN HOUSE on CFRN'S new-strength air-waves, come from the largest transcribed program library in the world... All-Canada's. More listener-winners are available for Edmonton sponsors from the same library. Contact CFRN's Commercial Department for full details.

Pure Full Tone, Less Static Steady Reception for CFRN

By the flick of a switch, radio station CFRN will jump from a 1,000 watt station to one of 5,000 watts - it will become the strongest, most modern radio broadcasting station in central and northern Alberta, just by the flick of a switch.

But behind that flick of the switch is more than a year's work and careful planning, to ensure better radio reception for Edmonton, central and northern Alberta.

After the decision was made to build a new 5,000 watt transmitter for CFRN came the task of selecting a site. Radio engineers and experts on the subject first made exhaustive surveys of transmission possibilities of transmitter sites in the area of Edmonton. Through their efforts a final selection was made of a spot four miles west of the city limits, on the Jasper highway in the municipality of Spruce Grove.

Two factors clinched the selection of that site for the powerful new transmitter. First was the fact that the site was free from trees, which would have interfered with the radio waves. Second was that the new site removed any danger of interference with other broadcasting channels.

Static Is Reduced

These two factors added together meant for Edmonton and the large territory its radio transmitters serve, a thing of prime importance to the radio public - greatly reduced static in reception of broadcasts.

The new transmitter will be manned by a staff of four operators and a chief engineer working on a 17-hour daily schedule from 6:30 a.m. through to sign-off time at midnight.

The new 5,000 watt transmitter unit is 15 feet long, three feet wide and weighs 6,000 pounds, or six tons.

Automatic Features

One of the most modern transmitters designed and built to date, it is fully equipped with automatic features for ease of operation. By pressing a single push-button the transmitter may be put into operation, and within 30 seconds the powerful 5,000 watt carrier is ready to transmit programs.

It has a vertical radiator type antenna consisting of a single steel tower 200 feet in height.

In operation the transmitter generates heat enough to heat a small business building with the result that 3,000 cubic feet of air must be blown through the system each operating minute to keep the system at the proper capable of supplying enough electricity to supply the needs of a small Alberta town.

Genius of Engineer

Of the men mainly responsible for the transmitter when makes CFRN the strongest station in the Edmonton district, Frank Makepeace stands out as a radio engineer. Mr. Makepeace's radio hobby dates back to 1916 when he started as a "ham" with his own tiny transmitter. He obtained his amateur license in 1921 and operated on that basis until 1928 when he joined the Edmonton Journal station.

Manager of that station then was Richard Rice and when Mr. Rice took over station CFTF in 1934 and changed the call letters to CFRN, Mr. Makepeace made the move with Mr. Rice to become chief engineer of the new commercial station. He has held that post since 1934.

Writing Division Highly Organized

Many would think that in a station of this size, the writing division would be a haphazard collection of people. But at CFRN, the writing division is a highly organized unit, with each member having a specific area of responsibility.

CFRN's writing division is headed by Helen Ramsay, a graduate of the University of Alberta, who has been with the station since 1941. She is assisted by May Dennistoun, a graduate of the University of Alberta, who has been with the station since 1941.

The writing division is responsible for the production of all the station's programs, including the popular "Music of Yesterday and Today" and "The Lone Ranger".

Staff of Office Meets Many Calls

In addition to the usual office functions, a radio station's business section has many other duties. Listener requests must be handled, and the station must maintain a high level of service to its audience.

The traffic department is also in the business office, and is responsible for making up the daily "bulletin" which appears on the air. This bulletin contains information about the station's programs and the local news.

Hours of Preparation For Every Hour on Air

Radio programs aim to please the listening public. The listener judges the program from its content and general arrangement. Each program must be a cohesive whole, the parts blended smoothly together to provide this pleasing result. It must be timed accurately without waste of words or needless repetition but enough said to sustain interest.

All this calls for hours of research, detailed preparation, choosing of music, of facts, writing of continuity, and doing the mass things that go to round out a satisfactory program.

The majority of production personnel are ready to spend many hours in overtime in trying to arrange the very best program schedules.

Public Is Guide
The slogan of the majority of production men is ever before them: "Do the Greatest Good for the Greatest Number."

Production departments of radio stations have many ways of finding out the kinds of programs which please their listeners.

The main one of these is the telephone poll. This is conducted by members of the department telephoning hundreds of people in the city and asking them personal opinion and inquiring to what station they are listening. This method has been most successful in past years and it is regarded as the standard.

Another method is by making Edmonton and district residents telephone to the station officials advising them of "favorite" programs.

Variety Is Wanted
"It is as easy for us to supply our listeners with heavy music from the operas as it is to give popular music," one official said recently. "There is no added cost."

Polar Trip Brought Four Main Results

1. History's most extensive exploration of snow-capped Antarctica.
2. Proof that big transport planes can take off from carriers and land on skis, and that airplanes for huge, heavy-lifted aircraft can be built on glacial ice.
3. Supplying a pool of approximately 4,000 men with varying degrees of experience in cold weather and ice operations. It also tested many types of equipment, obtained ideas for better design or some for Polar activities in peace or war.
4. Made many scientific observations, even though this phase of activity was limited.

Exploration work alone may prove the expedition worthwhile. It is estimated planes from Little America and from two task groups covered perhaps 4,833 miles of coastline and explored 400,000 square miles of land area.
Scores of hitherto unknown mountains, bays, islands and glaciers were seen, probably for the first time.

Arrest 2 Americans In Counterfeiting

FRANKFURT, Germany, (AP) — A United States army investigation of military currency counterfeiting took a new turn Monday with the arrest of two American Air Force officers based in Italy and the reported finding of a set of engraver's plates in Naples.

The new arrests, which indicated the counterfeiting operations may have centered in Italy, brought to nine the number taken into custody. The probe again began after a large number of bogus $5 and $10 bills in military scrip began turning up in France and Germany a month ago.

U.S. Stop Loans To Aid Recovery

WASHINGTON, (AP) — The export-import bank announced Sunday night that it will lend no more money to aid recovery in "emergency reconstruction."
The $3,500,000 government institution for foreign lending said its decision would apply especially to countries in position to seek loans from the world bank, to which the United States has subscribed $175,000,000. All countries holding membership in the world bank may apply to it for loans, although it has not yet begun lending operations.
